

History Repeats Itself

"The applicant's certified condition will seriously interfere with his earning capacity."

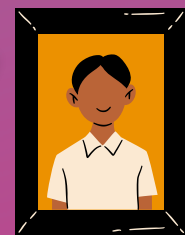

"The main subject at the meeting tonight is how they're going to get some better media coverage."

"Civic undesirability was slippery and broad."

Yes, the death was tragic, but under the circumstances, a reasonable number of deaths is justified.

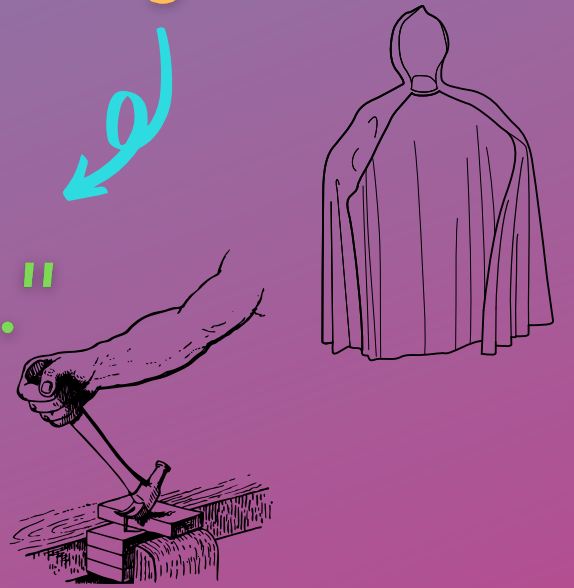

"Newborns and individuals with physical trauma, [a disability that today could be successfully managed over the course of a long and healthy life], sometimes simply died."

"The economic rationale of the LPC clause could serve, and often did serve, as a false cover story. Ableism and a desire for a specific form of American bodies motivated the deportation of many potential immigrants."

"And don't send people off to the booby hatch just because they homesick and didn't take their meds."

"I have the power to become invisible in some restaurants. I just never know which restaurants. Or how to turn the power off."

"Kids like this are trained to stay helpless. So they have to stay institutionalized."

"A perception of the need for care or confinement, rather than diagnosis, drove the early development of institutionalization. Sometimes confinement was horrific."
